BEIJING, Sept. 26 (Xinhua) -- China has lodged solemn representations to the United States for selling anti-submarine aircraft to Taiwan, Foreign Ministry spokesman Hong Lei said on Thursday.

Hong called on the U.S. to comply with the One-China policy and the three China-U.S. joint communiques at a daily news briefing after the U.S. delivered Taiwan 12 anti-submarine aircraft on Wednesday.

"The U.S. should stop arms sales to Taiwan in whatever form and refrain from any act that might damage China-U.S. ties and cross-strait relations," Hong said.

He reaffirmed China's opposition to arms sales from any countries to Taiwan.

Key Words: Taiwan

Related

• China opposes U.S. legislation on Taiwan's ICAO bid: spokeswoman
• Mainland reaffirms opposition to U.S.-Taiwan arms sales
• China reiterates opposition to U.S. weapon sales to Taiwan
• China firmly opposes U.S. congress defense authorization bill
• China opposes U.S.-Taiwan official contacts

We Recommend | More Photos

In pictures: China's first aircraft carrier "Liaoning"

China's 1st subway line in frigid region starts trial run in Harbin

Tenor's son sentenced to 10 years in prison for rape

Giant rubber duck floats at Summer Palace in Beijing

Afghan policemen receive training in Herat province

Death toll of Pakistan's earthquake rises to 348

Afghan policemen attend graduation ceremony

Indian students protest against sexual violence faced by women